Edinburgh bristles with a spectacular collection of must-see buildings from atop Castle Rock. The imposing fortress of Edinburgh Castle (parts of which date from the twelfth century) looms over the skyline and offers panoramic views over the city and surroundings. At the opposite end of the bustling Royal Mile lies the Palace of Holyroodhouse, official Scottish residence of the British monarch. Perfect for exploring on foot, the atmospheric Old Town and the Georgian New Town form a living UNESCO World Heritage site.

Day 6 - Falkland & St. Andrew's - You will travel North of Edinburgh today. Enjoy a short stop to enjoy the spectacular nineteenth century Forth Rail Bridge. Located 9 miles west of Edinburgh, the Forth Railway Bridge is a remarkable cantilever structure which is still regarded as an engineering marvel and is recognised the world over. The bridge was built to carry the two tracks of the North British Railway the 1½ miles over the Firth of Forth between South Queensferry and North Queensferry, at a height of 150 feet above the high tide. Continue to Falkland and visit Falkland Palace. Once a country residence of the Stuart family with beautiful painted ceilings, Flemish tapestries and gorgeous furniture. Day 8 - Kelso & Melrose - Travel in the southern direction to the Scottish Borders. Melrose Abbey (there is currently no visitor access to the abbey church. Melrose Abbey is a magnificent ruin on a grand scale with lavishly decorated masonry. Probably the most famous ruin in Scotland, the abbey was founded by David I in 1136 for the Cistercian Order, and it was largely destroyed by Richard II's English army in 1385. The surviving remains of the church are of the early 15th century and are of an elegance unsurpassed in Scotland. The abbey is also thought to be the burial place of Robert the Bruce's heart, marked with a commemorative carved stone plaque within the grounds. After, visit Abbotsford - The Home of Sir Walter Scott Abbotsford House, stunningly located on the banks of the River Tweed in the Scottish Borders, sits at the heart of the landscape that inspired the poetry and novels of its creator, Sir Walter Scott. Unlike the homes of other great writers, this is a house that the writer himself designed and as such uniquely embodies a physical representation of the Romantic Movement that he helped to create. When you touch the bricks and mortar of Abbotsford, you are touching the soul of Scott. The house contains an impressive collection of historic relics, weapons and armour, including Rob Roy's gun, dirk and sword, and an extensive library containing over 9,000 rare volumes. It sits amid formal gardens and a wider landscape that Scott designed and planted. (B)
